DRIVER REVIEW SUBMISSION

On July 4, 2026, Daniel Reyes requested review of the account deactivation. He stated that the person appearing in the verification photographs was his brother and that he had not knowingly given his brother the account for delivery work. He offered to complete another identity verification.

ACCOUNT REVIEW

Celeris Route reviewed the available verification results, account-authentication records, account history, and the driver's submission. The three facial-verification events occurred on separate dates and each followed successful authentication of the driver account.

The review confirmed repeated use of the account by a person whose facial image did not match the identity image associated with the account. The available authentication records establish successful account authentication before the verification events but do not independently identify the individual who entered or possessed the account credentials.

DECISION

Celeris Route determined that the repeated use of the driver account for identity verification by a person other than the account holder constituted a violation of the Driver Services Agreement's account-use and identity-verification requirements.

After considering the repeated verification events and the account's identity-verification requirements, Celeris Route determined that continued access presented a risk to the integrity of the driver account and identity-verification process. The account was therefore permanently deactivated effective July 5, 2026.

REVIEW LIMITATION

This record reflects Celeris Route's account decision and the information considered in making that decision. It does not state that Daniel Reyes personally entered the credentials for the verification sessions or that he knowingly provided those credentials to another person.
