Thank you for reviewing my complaint and providing the refund calculation.

I appreciate that Hana Luxvita has acknowledged the late coordinator substitution and the fact that I had to repeat some planning details to Jordan.

I do not agree with the $3,000 valuation of the services performed. The issue is not whether Hana Luxvita performed work; it clearly did. The issue is whether the work delivered the full-service coordination that I purchased.

Your calculation assigns $1,800 to planning and coordination, $600 to vendor research/booking, $450 to wedding-day coordination, and $150 to administration, but it does not explain how those figures were determined or relate them to the $10,000 package price.

I also disagree that the floral issue should be treated as having no impact. The final design was different from the floral look I selected, even though I ultimately agreed to proceed with the spray-rose substitute.

More importantly, my complaint includes the repeated coordination issues before the wedding and the last-minute change in the person providing the service. Those circumstances reduced the value of the full-service package even though the wedding itself went forward.

I appreciate the $500 goodwill offer, but I do not accept it as a resolution.

I continue to believe that a $1,500 partial refund is reasonable based on the issues documented in my October 20 complaint.

I am willing to resolve the matter for $1,250 as a compromise, provided Hana Luxvita pays that amount within seven days and confirms that the matter is fully resolved.

If Hana Luxvita does not agree, please provide your final position so I can determine whether to proceed under the dispute-resolution provision in the agreement.

Thank you,

Sophia Bennett
